Over 500 Attend Vigil In Memory Of Chris McCallum

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

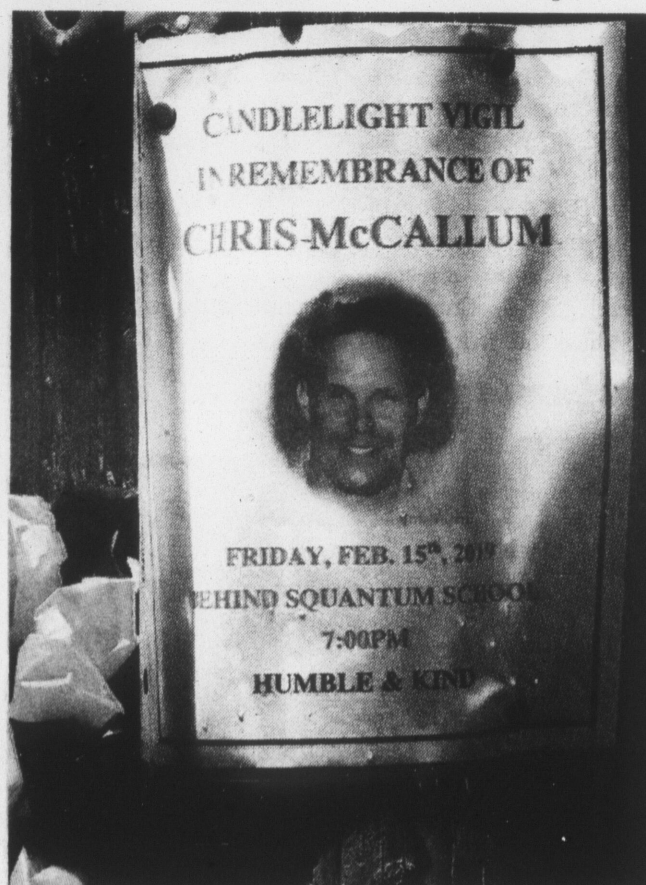

In another showing of support for the family of a former Quincy man who was fatally injured in an altercation outside an American Legion post in Squantum last month, more than 500 people came together for a solemn vigil last Friday night in memory of the beloved husband, son, father and friend to many.

As the supporters huddled together holding tiny candles behind the Squantum Elementary School, Christopher McCallum was remembered as a kind and humble man who would do anything for anyone. His widow, Kathy, appealed to anyone with information about the circumstances that led to Chris's death to step forward and speak to investigators so that justice in her husband's death can be served.

"Chris was assaulted Jan. 27th at the Nickerson Post here in Squantum as he tried to break up a fight and he suffered a fatal head injury," Kathy said with several family members at her side on the stage outside the school.

Merrymount School Retiring Principal Honored

By TOM GORMAN

Holding signs and banners that read "Happy Retirement" and "Thank You for Everything," Merrymount Elementary School students lined the hallways as principal Ann Pegg took her last walk through the school last Friday afternoon.

Pegg called it a career last week, capping a 50-year tenure with the Quincy school system – the last 14-1/2 years as Merrymount School's principal.

"It's been a great career," she said. "I can't think of any other career I would have wanted to do."

As students were dismissed and headed out the school to begin their winter vacation, dozens of parents stood outside in the rain, several holding signs of well wishes as Pegg stood on the top steps and waved to them.

Students joined their parents lining up outside to say their goodbyes, one-by-one. Some posed with her for a picture. Many presented her with cards and flowers. There were hugs and some tears.

"This is a sad day for the Merrymount School," said Assistant Principal John Rogan. "When we look at the success of our school, as a staff and as a community, who we always look at is our leader. Mrs. Pegg is our leader. We are who we are as a staff, as a school, and as a community because of our leader. When we say we love our school and the kids are happy, it all points back to her."

Rogan said that Pegg left an indelible mark on Merrymount School.

"I know that her legacy will continue because she has fostered that spirit of community of collaboration," he said. "We know that even with her gone, the school will continue to be an outstanding school. We will continue to hold her in our hearts, even in her retirement."

Pegg began her Quincy school career as a special education teacher in 1969 and then later became a classroom teacher. She taught in several of the district's schools before arriving at Merrymount 23 years ago.

"I taught fifth grade math and science for nine years and was the assistant principal at the same time," she said.

She later was appointed the Merrymount's principal.

"I left the classroom," said Pegg, adding, "I missed the classroom every day to be honest."

She said her passion is science and math. Some years ago, Pegg received the Presidential Award for science teaching.

School Homework Policy Survey

By TOM GORMAN
School officials will be conducting a survey on what changes should be made to the district's homework policy guidelines.

Committee Vice Chairwoman Emily Lebo told the school committee recently that the Citywide PTO extended to her concerns from parents about the policy's guidelines last fall. Since then, Lebo said she has held three meetings with Citywide PTO Co-Presidents Scott Alessandro and Courtney Perdios along with Quincy Education Association (teachers' union) President Allison Cox, Special Education parent representative Sandra Beck, and Quincy School Supt. Dr. Richard DeCristofaro to discuss the issue.

It was decided that a survey would be sent out to parents, guardians, students, and teachers seeking input for recommendations and suggestions to the policy.

"We looked at surveys that have gone out in other communities and we are developing our own based on that and with some feedback from the (teachers) union about what we should be looking for," Lebo said. "We will draft our own and get those out to people to look at. We are hoping that those surveys will help form our policy."

Lebo added the student advisory council will also assist in drafting the survey.

She noted the homework policy hasn't been updated in a long time. The only recent change, she said, was a few years ago to address vacation time.

"Our policy is fairly old and the guidelines are very old," she said. "They don't really meet the current standards of instructional practices and technology."

Lebo said parents will be kept informed as to when the survey will be sent out.

In another matter, the school department's business manager James Mullaney updated the committee on grants the district receives that augment the school operating budget. He explained that Quincy receives about $6 million in annual state and federal grants, $5.2 million of which are entitlement grants such as from the federal No Child Left Behind program that funds some special education programs.

In response to questions from committee member

Douglas Gutro, Mullaney explained that grants factor about 5 percent of the district's operating budget. At times, Mullaney said, grants accounted for as high as 10 percent of the budget.

"Over the years, grants have played a much larger role in our funding," said Mullaney. "As time has gone on, it has become less and less, but (grants) still are a tremendous piece of our operation."

He noted the district's operating budget has had to fund some positions and programs previously covered by grants.

"As our budget has gone up, grant funding has gone down," Mullaney said. "We've had to absorb some funds in our budget for programs we had in grants such as for kindergarten aides."

One grant the district is losing covers two full time school nurses. Mullaney explained that the Enhance School Health Grant parameters have changed that will no longer fund nursing posi-

Wollaston MBTA Parking Now $2

The MBTA announces the fare to park at Wollaston Station has been reduced from $5 to $2 effective this week.

The MBTA decided to reduce the parking fare after hearing concerns from the community about limited parking during construction of the new parking garage and development project at North Quincy.

mately 600 parking spots available at North Quincy and approximately 400 available at Wollaston.

Although there is currently no train service at Wollaston Station, commuters have the option of parking at the Wollaston Station lot for $2 and utilizing the free shuttle service to North Quincy or Quincy Center where they can get on the Red Line. Shuttle bus frequency also increased as of Monday.

A SLICE OF SOMETHING GOOD

Few would argue with the fact that diamonds are spectacular in all colors, sizes, shapes, and cuts. In the last several years "shaved" or "sliced" diamonds have added to the way designers create different and unique jeweled pieces. A sliced diamond is literally that, sliced. Using a laser, the rough diamond has slices cut from it in different sizes and widths. Slices may be clear or may have inclusions. Usually with a traditionally cut diamond, an inclusion lessens the value, but in a shaved diamond, it adds to it because the finished piece is more interesting. Often, one sliced side is faceted while the other is left flat. Slices come in many colors, including white, gray, yellow, and others.

If there is a diamond in your future, for yourself or someone else very special, we hope you'll choose Rogers Jewelry to help you find it. You'll need to look no farther than our sparkling displays at 1402 Hancock St. in Quincy Center. Because our diamond collection contains virtually any shape and size imaginable, we have something for everyone, something to accommodate a variety of budgets, from modest to affluent. Family Seeks Answers In Former Quincy Man's Death

"We are extremely appreciative to the Massachusetts State Police for their unending efforts to seek justice for Chris and our family."

Christopher McCallum, age 44, was among those attending a concert at the Post Saturday evening, Jan. 26th. The Quincy Police Department responded to reports of a "large disorder" at the Nickerson Post, located at 20 Moon Island Rd., shortly after 1 a.m. on Jan. 27, according to David Traub, the spokesman for the Norfolk District Attorney's Office. Traub said the officers who arrived on scene found McCallum unconscious and bleeding outside the post that morning. McCallum was rushed to Boston Medical Center and he succumbed to his injuries there the afternoon of Jan. 28.

Traub urged members of the public who were at the post that night or have information that could be relevant to investigators to contact State Police assigned to the Norfolk DA's office.

"State Police detectives attached to the Norfolk District Attorney's Office continue to investigate the facts and circumstances of the disturbance at the American Legion and the fatal injury to Christopher McCallum," Traub said. "Investigators urge anyone who was at that location and/or believes that they have information that could assist the investigation to contact State Police detectives at 781-830-4990."

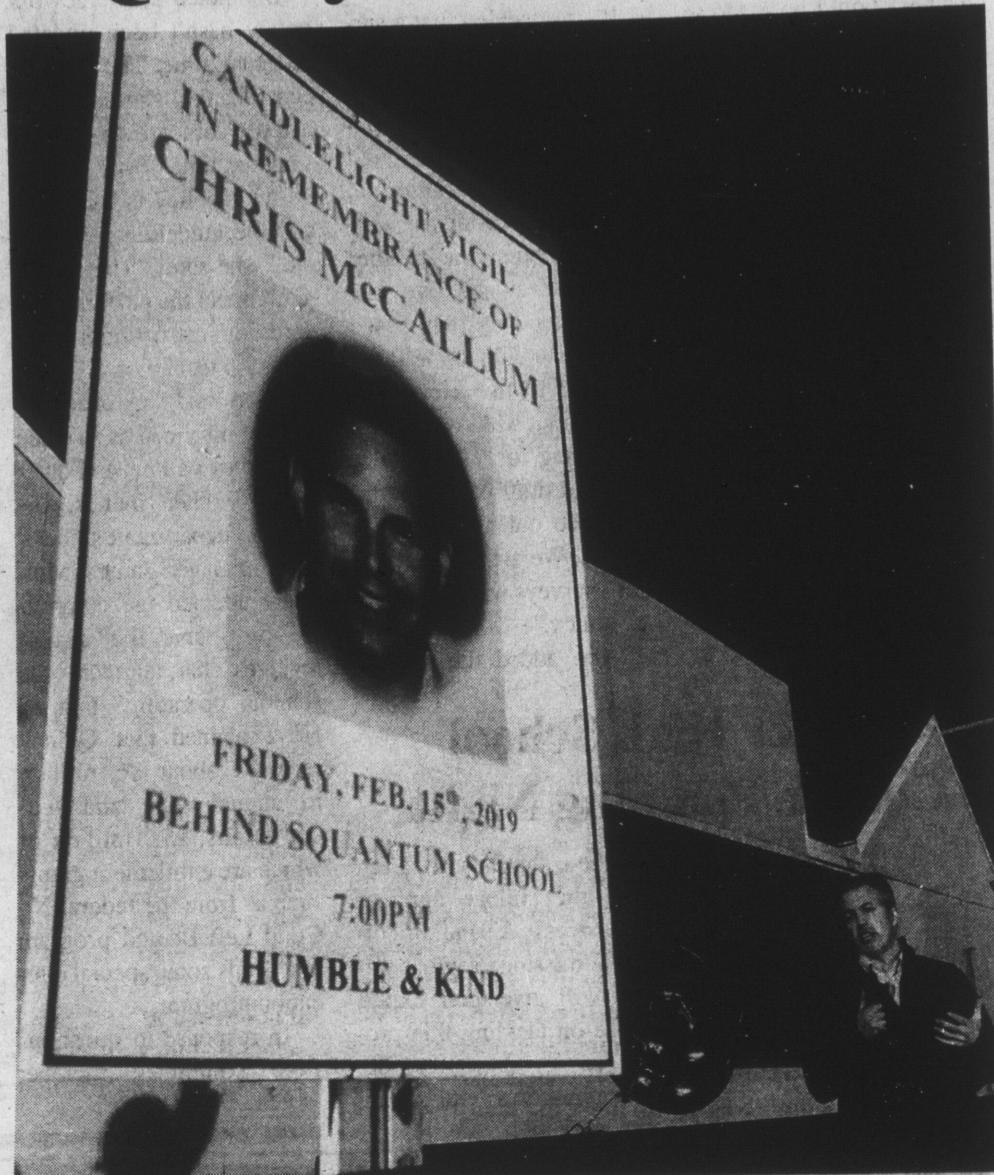

At the vigil, Kathy McCallum reiterated that appeal for further details about the incident.

"We are asking anyone who attended the concert at the Nickerson Post the night Chris was assaulted and may have seen or heard anything that night to please come forward and contact the State Police to share details no matter how small they may seem because they are all important to this investigation."

"Please clear your conscience and tell the truth," she continued. "Even lies of omission lead to injustice. As our families struggle to move forward in a world without Chris, we ask that in his memory and in remembrance of how he lived please be kind to one another."

"Thank you from the bottom of our hearts. We love you," she concluded as several vigil goers replied, "we love you, too."

Chris McCallum grew up on Deerfield Street in the Squantum section of Quincy

MICHAEL FEHAN, pastor of the Evangelical Church of the Atlantic, was among the speakers at a vigil Feb. 15 in memory of Christopher McCallum who died last month after trying to break up a fight outside the Nickerson American Legion Post in Squantum. "We come tonight to pray and to ask for justice that things will be made right," Pastor Fehan said. No arrests have been made since the Jan. 27th incident. McCallum, age 44, was married and the father of three sons.

and graduated from North Quincy High School in 1992 where he was a stand-out athlete. A captain of the Red Raider football and ice hockey teams, he was inducted into the North Quincy Football Hall of Fame in 2016. He played football for Mass Maritime Academy where he graduated in 1996 before going on to work as an engineer.

Hundreds attended his wake and funeral at Sacred Heart Church on Feb. 5. A GoFundMe fund to benefit his family has raised nearly a quarter of a million dollars.

Friends of the McCallum family are also selling t-shirts and decals with the message "Justice for Chief," McCallum's high school nickname.

"The outpouring of support shown to the family has been unbelievable," William McCallum, Chris's father, told the Sun moments before the vigil began. "It just shows what a great guy he was. He's the type of guy who could walk into a room and make the lights go on by themselves. He could turn a cloudy day into a sunny day."

William McCallum also remembered a son who was unselfish and kind.

"If anyone ever needed any help he was the first one there to help. He'd drive 30 miles from (his home in) Bridgewater to Squantum to help me. He'd do anything. He'd even come over on his lunch hour to help."

"He was just a great guy and I'm not saying that because he was my son. He was just a great overall guy."

Asked if the family is frustrated by the apparently slow pace of the investigation, William McCallum replied: "I know the investigation is going slow but hopefully they will come up with something. I just pray to God that he doesn't leave this earth for nothing. Somebody has to be held accountable."

Among the many friends attending the McCallum vigil was Dan Gilmartin whose friendship with Chris stretched back some 30 years ago. They grew up together playing youth football and later suited up for the Red Raiders. Both were also members of the Red and Black football fraternity that has rallied around the McCallum family since Chris's senseless and tragic passing.

"The outpouring of support and caring and being there for each other really doesn't surprise me at all," Gilmartin said. "And Chris would be the first one would have been leading the way on something like this. You have a lot of guys who have stepped to the forefront, some are doing things behind the scenes but there's a long list of guys who came out to support him."

"It's a special brotherhood and it was laid out for us as we were kids; we didn't invent this. This is how we were brought up: pay it forward, give it back, that's what we try to do."

"It's extremely sad circumstances like this bring us together but this is what we do and that doesn't surprise me. Chris was a huge part of it and he will always be a huge part of it. His memory will never fade."

"He'd be the first one down here to lend a helping hand to the family."

Gilmartin remembered his friend as a "heck of an athlete but more than that he was a true gentleman. I remember him handling himself with class and dignity even as a kid. He was a big, tough guy but he was always gentle and kind. He was always smiling and always the first one to stick his hand out to help somebody."

Gilmartin, like many others, are among those hoping justice is served in Chris's death.

"It's incredibly sad what happened to him. It's still surreal and hasn't really sunk in yet. I hope at some point his family can get

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A 1952 real photo postcard showing one of the last New Haven Railroad passenger trains pulled by an ALCO diesel locomotive. Headed to Boston the train is arriving at the Victorian styled Wollaston depot. Originally called the Wollaston Heights depot, it was built in 1870 by the Old Colony railroad, which began running trains through Quincy in 1945. For over 100 years steam engines powered the trains along here. After World War II, commuters started using automobiles and train ridership began to dwindle. The New Haven then switched to the type of locomotives shown here, but it was only for a few years and they then converted the line to Budd Rail Diesel Cars. The shiny new stainless-steel self-propelled Budd cars seemed to breath new life into the Old Colony and ridership picked up. But the inevitable happened when the New Haven discontinued its Old Colony passenger service in June 1959. Today, the MBTA provides rail service to Wollaston with its rapid transit Red Line that opened in 1971. A new Wollaston MBTA station is scheduled to open this August.

City Concerned Over Nixon's Budget Cuts

Quincy received $1.8 million from the federal government in 1972, and Jeffrey Davidson, director of the Department of Planning, Programming and Development, says that he is "hopeful" that a similar sum will be forthcoming in 1973 despite budget cuts by President Nixon.

But right now everything is pretty much up in the air.

Davidson said there will be dramatic changes ahead for Quincy in obtaining federal funds as result of policy changes proposed in Washington. Quincy will, in all probability, lose projects such as the Quincy Point Improvement Program.

PROPOSE NAMING NEW SCHOOL

IN MEMORY OF DR. CHARLES DJERF

The naming of the new Lincoln-Hancock School in memory of Dr. Charles Djerf loomed as a strong possibility.

"It couldn't be a more fitting memorial to a man who dedicated his life to Quincy's school children and to public service," School Committeeman Daniel G. Raymondi told The Quincy Sun.

"Dr. Djerf grew up in that area. He treated, if not delivered, many, many babies there. He served for many years with distinction as a member of the school committee. A good part of his life was devoted to helping children."

Other names suggested included former school committee member and county treasurer Raymond C. Warmington, former mayor Charles A. Ross and President John F. Kennedy. (Editor's note: None of the above won the support of the school committee members. The school was named the Lincoln-Hancock Community School. The community pool at the school was later named in Dr. Djerf's memory.)

Quincy: A Village That Can Raise A Child

I truly believe it takes a village to raise a child and I am convinced that the city of Quincy is that village. It is an honor to write on behalf of Friends of the Unborn, Pregnancy Help Center and Maternity Home located in the heart of Quincy.

At Friends of the Unborn, our program offers mothers and babies a chance at a new beginning. Because of the countless resources in our community we can give our residents the tools to succeed in life.

We are privileged to witness many positive changes in our residents' lives as they navigate these resources. The programs at QCAP, Quincy Family Resource Center, the Crane Library, the Quincy Braintree Family Network, Interfaith Social Services, the YMCA, the Kennedy Center, to name a few, have touched our residents in one way or another.

Quincy is such a vibrant and welcoming location. The convenience of public transportation, the support of the Police and Fire Departments, the Post Office, the countless houses of worship, the schools and colleges, even the stores and restaurants provide a safe and nurturing environment for our "family" here at Friends of the Unborn. Please know how grateful we are for all you do. I thank Mayor Koch for leading our city and helping to make our house a home for the precious women and children in our care.

Thank you to all who have helped make Quincy that village for our children.

Fond Memories Of The Great Jackie Robinson

On Jan. 31, 2019, Jackie Robinson would have turned 100 years old. This noted remembrance brought back memories I had of him.

When I was district attorney of Norfolk County, I was leading a seminar regarding drug abuse and addiction at Archbishop Williams High School. Jackie Robinson's son, Jackie Robinson, Jr., had become addicted to drugs shortly after serving in Vietnam. At the young age of 24, Jackie Robinson, Jr. died in an automobile accident.

I called Jackie Robinson and asked if he would be willing to come and speak at the seminar and he agreed to come. When he and his wife came to Quincy I invited them to dinner and we had a great time.

I will always remember the late great Jackie Robinson coming to Quincy and speaking and telling his story of his son.

Merrymount Retiring Principal Ann Pegg Honored

"I thought that was going to be the highlight of my career," she said.

Later, another milestone was celebrated, she said, when Merrymount School received the national Blue Ribbon Award for academic excellence and closing achievement gaps.

"That was so exciting because it took so much team work," she said.

Pegg had high praise for her staff.

"It's a fabulous staff," she said. "Everyone works together and supports each other. We are able to develop a vision and develop the steps to go on into that vision."

Pegg voiced her appreciation of parents and the PTO. She noted that the PTO raised enough funds to purchase Chromebook laptop computers to augment the ones provided by the school department.

"We were able to have a Chromebook for every kid," she said.

Pegg said she was surprised by her sendoff, describing seeing the students lining the hallways cheering her as she made her way through the building.

"It was so moving and beautiful," she said. "They said there wouldn't be any duck boats, but it felt like a duck boat parade."

Pegg noted how a few days earlier, a student she had in the first grade some 40 years ago stopped by and presented her with roses.

"He said that I was his favorite teacher."

Although Pegg is retiring, she will still be a familiar face around the school, attending events and dropping by to just say hello. Her commute is short, "I just live a block away."

She said she will miss the students, parents and staff.

"It's been a pleasure being the principal here and it's been a pleasure being a teacher here," she said.

Pegg said her career was buoyed by two of her favorite quotes.

One, from civil rights leader, Dr. Martin Luther

MERRYMOUNT SCHOOL STUDENTS hold a banner in the hallway to wish their retiring principal, Ann Pegg, good luck.

King Jr., "We must remember that intelligence is not enough. Intelligence plus character is the goal of true education."

"I really believe that,"

said Pegg.

The other quote, she explained, "really guides me as a principal."

"Leadership is not about being the best, leadership is about making everyone else better."

"I think education is so important," she said. "I just feel education is the key to everything."

Sterling Middle School Principal Courtney Mitchell will serve as acting principal at Merrymount until a permanent replacement is appointed.

Former Mayor McCauley Pens Autobiography

'FRANK: From Bootlegger To Bank Presidents And Beyond'

During his 32 years in public office, former Quincy Mayor Francis X. McCauley established a reputation for honesty, integrity and astute fiscal management that garnered the city national awards for financial leadership.

So, it may surprise some to learn that, as one longtime friend observed, "Frank McCauley came this close to being nothing!"

In his newly published autobiography, McCauley details his improbable rise from so-so student and aimless clam digger to bank president and mayor of Quincy. In "FRANK: From Bootlegger to Bank President and Beyond," McCauley pulls no punches in recounting the missteps, bad decisions and lack of ambition that hampered his progress early in life.

"If I have been hard on anyone in these pages, it is on myself," McCauley, 89, writes in the author's message, "in the hope that someone may learn from the mistakes of my youth and be encouraged to do more with their life than perhaps they think they are capable of achieving."

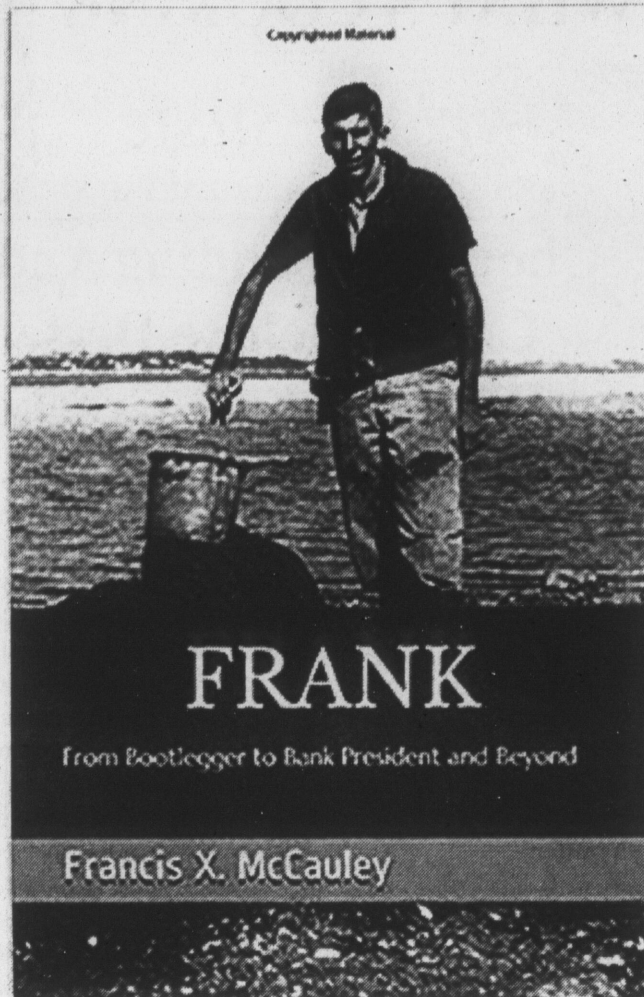

Indeed, followers of Quincy politics may find it hard to reconcile McCauley's well-earned reputation as a straitlaced, conservative, fiscal disciplinarian with the undisciplined, irresponsible youth recounted in "FRANK." In the autobiography, McCauley recounts dropping out of college to become a clam digger, often digging in illegal areas – or "bootlegging" – and getting arrested by the local clam wardens.

The book also details McCauley's fondness for drinking and carousing with the neighborhood youths. It would take an arrest for drunken driving and the love of a good woman – his future wife, Sandra – to get McCauley to straighten up and set his life on a better path.

"It has often been said that the wife a man chooses will determine how successful the course of his life will be," McCauley writes in "FRANK." "If there were ever living proof of that statement, I am it."

"FRANK" follows McCauley's life through his years working in a warehouse and attending night school, to his entry into banking and eventually to his years in Quincy politics. An appendix provides additional documents detailing McCauley's accomplishments as mayor. He stresses, however, that the autobiography focuses more on his early life, exploring his political career from a high level.

"I'm not looking to rehash old political battles or settle old scores," said McCauley, who in 2018 was diagnosed with Parkinson's. Plus, an umbrella term for a number of disorders associated with Parkinson's Disease. "I've had a great life and I just wanted to share some of what I learned along the way."

"FRANK: From Bootlegger to Bank President and Beyond" is available in paperback and ebook formats from Amazon.com at: <https://www.amazon.com/dp/1795420847>. McCauley also plans to hold book signings in Quincy in the near future.

Chocolate Pudding And Whipped Cream Deluxe Dessert Made With Graham Cracker Crust

By MARIE

Today's recipe is for a scrumptious dessert made by niece, Ann, who whipped this up recently and it has two of my favorite ingredients - chocolate and fresh whipped cream. Although it is sometimes called a pie it is baked in a large baking dish and cut into squares.

Pre-heat oven to 350 degrees

Prepare a 10 x 14 baking pan - Grease with butter

Recipe:

For the Crust:

1 box of Graham Crackers

2 sticks of butter plus two tablespoons, melted

2/3 cups granulated sugar

2 large boxes of chocolate pudding

1 large container of whipping cream

1/4 cup confectionery sugar

Place graham crackers in a food processor and run until all crackers are crumbs. If you don't have a food processor you can place the crackers in a sealable plastic freezer bag and use a rolling pin to crush them until fine.

Once crushed, place in a large mixing bowl and add 2/3 cups of sugar, melted butter and blend well. Lightly grease with butter a 10 x 14 baking pan and spoon and pat down the crumbs covering the entire pan bottom and sides and bake at 350 degrees for 10 minutes.

Remove from oven and let cool about 30 minutes.

Prepare the two boxes of pudding according to directions and pour over the graham cracker crumbs.

Let cool for about 15 minutes and move to refrigerator (you may want to cover glass refrigerator shelves with oven mitts or dish towels before placing pan with hot pudding inside.)

Once cooled (I usually cool overnight) prepare whipped cream by adding 1/4 cup confectionery sugar to entire container of cream. Whip cream until it forms peaks. Spread over cooled pudding.

Cut into squares and serve. Keep refrigerated when storing Optional: Instead of two large boxes of chocolate pudding you can use one large box of chocolate pudding and one large box of vanilla pudding.

Skillet 'Stuffed Cabbage'

By SUSIE

I love stuffed cabbage, but what a pain to prepare. How about a skillet version served over rice? Only a short time to prepare and you have a yummy healthy meal.

Skilled "Stuffed Cabbage"

1 can (28 ounces) whole plum tomatoes, undrained. CHOP the tomatoes before cooking

1 pound organic grass fed beef or turkey/chicken

1 large sweet onion, chopped, 1 medium green pepper chopped

1 can (8 ounces) tomato sauce (I like MUIR GLEN)

1 stalk celery, chopped

2 tablespoons apple cider vinegar

1 tablespoon coconut sugar

1 teaspoon dried oregano, thyme and sea salt, 1/2 teaspoon pepper

2 cloves garlic, minced

1 small head cabbage, thinly sliced (about 6 cups)(you can even buy cole slaw mix with just the cabbage)

Cook beef, pepper, celery and onion over medium-high heat about 10 minutes or so. Add garlic, and stir in tomato sauce, vinegar, brown sugar, seasonings, CHOPPED tomatoes and reserved liquid. Add cabbage and cook, covered, 5 minutes then take cover off and cook until cabbage is done (about 10 or 15 minutes).

Proposed Medical Center Belongs At QMC, Not More Housing

Will someone please explain to us Quincy taxpayers why do our city officials need to build a medical facility in downtown Quincy when we have a great hospital just up the street from City Hall?

Tom Koch wants to build a medical building in downtown Quincy costing us millions that we don't need. What we need is a "common sense" manager for the now closed Quincy Medical Center. We don't need more houses in that area of the

What is Chronic Traumatic Encephalopathy (CTE)?

A Message From Ruth Jones, Director Of Nursing, Quincy Health Dept.

By RUTH JONES
BSN, RN, BC, CP-FS

Chronic traumatic encephalopathy (CTE) is a brain condition linked to repeated blows to the head. It is also correlated with the development of dementia.

Possible signs of CTE are problems with thinking and memory, personality changes, and deviations in behavior including aggression and depression. People may not experience signs of CTE until years after brain injuries transpire. A definitive diagnosis of CTE can only be made after death, when an autopsy can disclose whether the recognized brain changes of CTE are present.

Causes

When analyzing available studies data indicates that the greatest risk factor for developing CTE connected brain changes is repetitive brain trauma or repeated, forceful blows to the head, such as those that may occur playing contact sports that may not however, individually, cause symptoms.

Most documented cases have occurred in athletes involved in contact sports such as boxing, American football, wrestling, ice hockey, rugby and soccer. Other risk factors include being in the military, prior domestic violence, and repeated banging of the head. The exact amount of trauma required for the condition to occur is unknown.

Concussion

A concussion also known as, mild traumatic brain injury, either doesn't render you unconscious or you become unconscious for 30 minutes or less. Short-term symptoms often appear at the time of the injury, but also can progress days or weeks later.

Traumatic brain injuries also can be categorized as moderate or severe, contingent on symptoms and the length of time of unconsciousness that the brain injury resulted in.

Symptoms & Treatments

The signs of CTE may sometimes be similar to those of other conditions that involve substantial loss of brain cells, including Alzheimer's disease and Parkinson's disease. Possible general signs include:

- Memory loss
- Confusion
- Personality changes including depression and suicidal thought.
- Erratic behavior (including aggression)
- Problems paying attention and organizing thoughts
- Difficulty with balance and motor skills

More specifically, symptoms of CTE occur in four stages, commonly appearing eight to ten years after an athlete experiences repetitive mild traumatic brain injuries.

First-stage symptoms include:

- attention deficit hyperactivity disorder
- confusion

- disorientation
 - dizziness
 - headaches
- Second-stage symptoms include:

- memory loss
- social instability
- impulsive behavior
- poor judgment

Third and fourth stages include:

- progressive dementia
- movement disorders
- hypomimia (reduced degree of facial expression)
- speech impediments
- sensory processing disorder
- tremors
- vertigo
- deafness
- depression
- suicidality

Additional symptoms include dysarthria (speech disorder), dysphagia (difficulty swallowing), cognitive disorders such as amnesia, and ocular abnormalities, such as ptosis (drooping eyelids). Patients with CTE may be prone to inappropriate or explosive behavior and may display pathological jealousy or paranoia.

Like Alzheimer's dementia, CTE is distinguished by tangles of an abnormal form of the protein in the brain. It is not clear how the brain changes that associated with CTE are related to cognitive or behavioral dysfunction.

There's no evidence that a single concussion increases CTE risk, and not everyone with a history of recurring concussions will go on to develop CTE. Researchers strongly suspect that CTE is most likely to occur following a large number of traumatic brain injuries — even without loss of consciousness, a small number of more severe traumatic brain injuries, or some other pattern of head trauma.

There is evidence linking moderate and severe traumatic brain injuries to a greater risk of developing other brain conditions, such as Alzheimer's disease.

Diagnosis

Currently, there are no tests available to diagnose if someone has CTE. Because CTE is a comparatively new health issue, formal clinical guidelines for diagnosing and managing CTE have not been established. A definitive diagnosis can only be made through an autopsy after death. However, when CTE is suspected, a detailed medical history, mental status testing, neurological exams, brain imaging and additional diagnostic tests may be employed to rule out other conceivable causes.

Treatment

Presently, there is no treatment and no cure for CTE. The only known way to prevent it is to avoid repeated head injuries. Those with potential signs of CTE may benefit from some of the similar types of care provided for people with Alzheimer's disease and other types of dementia, for example the initiation of behavioral therapy approaches utilized to deal with aggressive behavior.

Being a caregiver for someone with CTE is not unlike being a caregiver for those with dementia and can be exhausting and overwhelming. Those who are caring for someone with signs of CTE may find it beneficial to know what to expect as this condition progresses, and from having a support network in place.

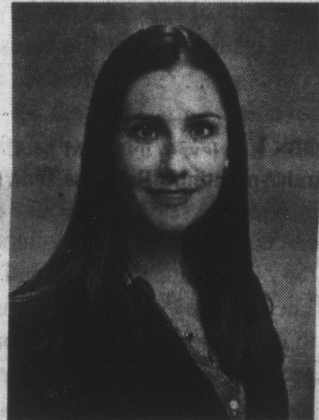

Ruth Jones is the director of Nursing for the City of Quincy Health Department.

Keenan Chairman Of Post Audit And Oversight

Committee assignments have been announced for the next session of the Massachusetts State Legislature, and state Sen. John F. Keenan (D-Quincy) says he looks forward to working with new committee members in both the House and Senate.

Keenan, who last session chaired the Senate Committee on Bonding and Capital Expenditures, will now serve as chairman of the Senate Committee on Post Audit and Oversight. The Committee on Post Audit and Oversight examines the performance of state agencies and conducts special studies or investigations as necessary. In the past, the committee has worked to investigate the role of fines in the criminal justice system and excessive increases in homeowner's insurance rates.

"I look forward to working with my Committee members to ensure that our state agencies are always working for the people of the Commonwealth," Keenan said.

Keenan, a lead sponsor on many substance abuse treatment and prevention laws passed since first elected in 2011, has also been reappointed vice-chairman of the Joint Committee on Mental Health, Substance Use, and Recovery. The Joint Committee on Mental Health, Substance Use and Recovery deals with all matters concerning behavioral health, mental illness and substance use disorder, including prevention, treatment, recovery services and homelessness.

"We are in the midst of a heartbreaking opioid epidemic and we must be dedicated to finding better solutions to this very complex issue every day," Keenan said. "I will continue to find smarter ways to prevent addiction, help provide treatment to those already suffering, and work to change the way we talk about addiction."

Keenan was also reassigned to the Senate Committee on Bonding, Capital Expenditures and State Assets, and assigned to the Joint Committee on Public Service, the Joint Committee on Labor and Workforce Development, and the Joint Committee on Housing.

"With over 6,000 bills already filed this session, we have lots of work to do," Keenan said. "I'm pleased with this session's assignments and look forward to working with my committee colleagues in the coming months."

Social Security Matters

Ask Rusty – Using Health Savings Account Funds While On Medicare

By RUSSELL GLOOR

AMAC Certified Social Security Advisor
Association Of Mature American Citizens

Dear Rusty: My understanding is that once I'm on Medicare the HSA cannot be used. I have prescriptions that cost more with the Medicare Insurance than paying cash, so why can't I use the HSA to pay for these types of prescriptions and for DME with prescriptions? Signed: Wanting to Know

Dear Wanting: The "HSA" (Health Savings Account) is an excellent vehicle to save money tax-free to use for paying medical expenses not covered by other types of healthcare insurance, but the rules surrounding HSAs are often confusing. To be eligible for an HSA, your main healthcare coverage must be (or have been) a high-deductible plan which exposes you to significant healthcare expenses, you must pay "out of pocket." While you are working the HSA provides a savings account that you (and your employer) can contribute pre-tax dollars to, up to certain annual limits ($3,500 if you're single and $7,000 for a family, in 2019). The money contributed reduces your taxable income and thus your tax burden, and money withdrawn from your HSA account to pay medical expenses is not considered taxable income. Certainly, a win-win situation, but there are some restrictions that you need to be aware of: First, you and your employer must stop making HSA contributions 6 months prior to your date of application for Medicare Part A (hospitalization coverage). Enrollment in Part A is automatic if you are 65 when you apply for Social Security, because you cannot receive Social Security benefits without taking Part A if you are 65. Any HSA contributions made after the cut-off may be subject to tax penalties and they will not be considered pre-tax contributions (this applies to contributions from both you and your employer). But although you can no longer contribute to your HSA 6 months before applying for Part A, you can still use the money which has accumulated in your HSA to pay medical expenses for you and your spouse after you have enrolled in Medicare. A medicine or drug is a qualified medical expense for HSA purposes only if the medicine or drug requires a prescription or is available without a prescription (an over-the-counter medicine or drug) and you get a prescription for it or is insulin.

If you have prescriptions or expenses for durable medical equipment (DME), the cost associated with the purchase or rental of DME which is prescribed by a medical practitioner to alleviate or treat a specific medical condition is a qualified HSA expense. If it costs less to pay cash, you can use the accumulated funds in your HSA account to pay those expenses, rather than using Medicare or a Medicare Advantage plan. And as an extra bonus, you can even get reimbursed for your Medicare Part B (and D) premiums using funds which accumulated in your HSA account while you were working and contributing to it.

Sporadic Heat, Better Gas Mileage

Ask John Paul: AAA New England's Car Doctor

I have a 2010 Jeep Grand Cherokee. It has been a pretty good vehicle and at this point I keep it for winter travel and trips to the beach in the summer. I have a new Honda Accord for long distance trips. Here is the problem: the heat suddenly stopped working. The heater was blowing cold air and wouldn't heat up at all. I swapped cars and drove the new Honda, the next time I used the Jeep, the same problem, no heat. I took it to my local mechanic and lifted the hood and checked everything but didn't see anything "mechanically wrong" with it. Strangely, when I headed back home the heat worked great. I have a couple of ski trips planned and fear that the heat may go off again. The mechanic suggested that I bring it to a Jeep specialist since it must be an electrical issue. Do you agree?

The heater valve is a quick check and is easily verified if it works or not. The blend door control is a little trickier to check. It is possible the blend door was simply stuck and the bang of closing the hood allowed it to move and work. Try cycling the heat on and off and see if it goes from hot to cold. If it seems to operate normally, go skiing. If the heat stops working at least you will be dressed for the cold.

I bought cheap a 2010 Chevrolet Malibu in Florida; the car is really clean but like every Florida car I looked at it has 200,000 miles on it. Here is the problem: sometimes when I start the car it sounds like a rapid grinding banging noise. I took it to my local shop and they replaced the starter. The car is much better but from time to time it makes the same noise. What could be wrong?

Judging by your description the starter drive gear is not properly meshing with the engine's ring gear/flywheel. I would start with removing the starter and inspecting the ring gear. The longer the starter was grinding the more likely it could damage the engine's flywheel/ring gear. If the ring gear is damaged it will be an expensive repair. The labor alone will take about seven hours.

I inherited my grandmother's 1991 Pontiac 6000. The car has a 3.1-liter six-cylinder engine and the car only has 54,000 original miles on it. In the glove box I found the original window sticker and it says the fuel economy should be 19 miles per gallon in the city and 30 miles per gallon on the highway on regular 87 octane gas. I'm only getting about 15/25 miles per gallon but need to use premium fuel to keep the car from pinging. I love the car, it is comfortable, and it reminds me of my grandparents, but I don't like spending 50 cents more per gallon for gas.

Some basic items need to be checked first, including engine timing, sensors, exhaust gas recirculation (EGR) valve and engine temperature. If everything looks okay, then the problem is most likely carbon built up in the combustion chambers of the engine. This buildup of carbon, raises the engine compression, effects how the fuel burns and can cause pinging. Find a shop that has a carbon-clean machine, this will remove carbon from the combustion chamber and back of the valves.

I have seen you answer this question before, but my husband won't listen to me – maybe he will to you. We have a Toyota Camry and whenever possible he shifts to neutral to coast, claiming it saves on gas. He calls this hypermiling. During a one-hour trip he may shift into neutral 10 times. In addition to driving me crazy is this damaging the car, and does it really save gas?

In my opinion any slight savings in fuel economy would be lost in wear and tear to the transmission. In fact, some states such as Michigan, Texas and New Jersey have laws that state an operator moving on a downgrade may not coast with the gears or transmission of the vehicle in neutral. This coasting downhill in some circles is considered a "Georgia-overdrive." My feeling is, you should never trade safety for fuel economy.

Students, grades K through 12, from across Massachusetts including Quincy, have been selected to have their artwork displayed at the State Transportation Building, 10 Park Plaza, Boston, as part of the 2019 Statewide Youth Art Month Exhibit.

The Boston exhibit is the only statewide K-12 exhibit in Massachusetts with work from private and public schools. The show will be on display and open to the public weekdays 9 a.m. - 5 p.m. from Feb. 11 through March 27. The exhibit is closed weekends.

This year's Youth Art Month theme is Your Art, Your Story.

John Keohane, Funeral Director

Ask The Director

Does Keohane offer complete cremation services and options?

Yes! In fact, we are THE cremation experts on the South Shore.

Families who choose cremation as the method of disposition have almost unlimited options for creating unique and personalized services to honor the memory of their loved one and to celebrate the life that was lived, the relationships that were enjoyed and the special contributions of that person to their community. Our team is carefully trained to answer all your questions about cremation and to help you create the type of memorial that is right for you and your family.

FLEXIBILITY:

Cremation offers the flexibility to choose the ceremonies that are right for you. Complete funeral services, with or without viewing, church services, visitation, cemetery and burial options are all still available to families who choose cremation, and our funeral directors are dedicated to helping you determine how to best create the most meaningful ceremony for your unique situation.

HEALING:

Experts agree that some sort of formal ceremony is important to the healing process. These ceremonies and services can be held either before or after the cremation takes place. The deceased can be prepared for viewing prior to cremation which provides a much needed sense of closure for many; or following cremation, the person may be present in an urn during services as well. This enables most families to create a ceremony that revolves around either an open or closed casket, with traditional services in either a church or one of our chapels, or if you prefer, at a location of your choosing.

OPTIONS FOR FINAL DISPOSITION:

There are many options for honoring a loved one who has been cremated that both pay tribute and give comfort. Most families find it important to create a lasting memorial and our expert directors will help you choose whether earth burial or columbarium inurnment is right for you, or if another option would be more appropriate. Cremated persons can be shared amongst family members, turned into jewelry, stored in keepsakes and more. Some families will choose a location that was special to the deceased and hold a scattering ceremony at that special place. Again, the options are only limited by your imagination. Our job is to help you find the solution that provides healing for your family and honors that life that has passed.

ENSURING THE SAFETY AND DIGNITY OF YOUR LOVED ONE:

At Keohane, we are dedicated to maintaining the safety and dignity of your loved one. Each member of our team is trained to confirm the identification of those we take into our care and identification markers are always applied to ensure that your loved one is safe. We are the only funeral home on the South Shore to offer a dedicated temperature-controlled room on site in order to provide you the assurance you deserve that your loved one is protected and treated with dignity and care at all times. We always invite families to choose the clothing that the deceased will be dressed in so that final image will be the one you choose and the one that lets you remember your loved one as the unique person he or she indeed was. While most families choose a public viewing and ceremony, some families may prefer a private viewing, which is always available.

EXPERT GUIDANCE AVAILABLE TO ALL:

Our highly trained and dedicated team welcomes your questions and concerns. We are here to listen, ask questions and help you create the ceremony that will best honor your loved one and provide the most healing experience possible for your family. Please call us at 1-800-KEOHANE to find out which of the many options available are right for your family concerns. We are here to help.

1-800-KEOHANE

Good news! Based on DNA from a flashlight left behind at one of the house breaks, our Detective Division was able to determine the identity of a suspect, a man from Roxbury who recently got out of jail prior to the housebreaks.

Breaks into homes by our suspect happened throughout greater Boston. Our detectives took the lead by matching the photos from the suspect's license and booking photos to video and photos collected from victims and residents and there was a good match. Detectives met with other affected local departments and a task force was created to conduct surveillance on the suspect and hopefully catch him in the act.

After many hours of surveillance and following the suspect as he cased neighborhoods around Boston, (didn't return to Quincy) the suspect parked his car in a Brookline neighborhood. Soon after, the suspect was apprehended when he returned to his car in possession of stolen money, jewelry and a crowbar.

There were many reasons why the rash of breaks stopped in the area and it started with the well-attended public meeting at the Wollaston School. I think the superb media coverage helped in convincing the suspect to move on to other cities and towns. Another factor was the significant increase in undercover patrols throughout the area.

One of the biggest deterrents was community involvement. Tips from residents came in daily and were quickly followed up. Officers from various Detective Divisions, the Patrol Division, the Anti-Crime Unit, Community Police, Special Operations, Homeland Security/Marine Division, the K-9 Unit, and the Traffic Division went undercover.

A Job Well Done

By QUINCY POLICE LT. DAN MINTON

They talked about how so many residents were out walking their neighborhoods with other neighbors and/or their dogs, about residents looking out their windows, about residents calling the police about suspicious cars (which were on occasion the police, one resident asked me if I needed a jump as a ruse to see who I was), about how officers were offered hot drinks and about how many thank yous they received.

This was truly a police/community effort to stop the crimes. On behalf of the Quincy Police Department, it was a pleasure to work so intensely with the community!

NICE WORK BY OFFICER TIM KAES

Recently, a Coopers Hawk became injured while flying into a pole at the Quincy Center MBTA train station. Officer Tim Kaes responded to the call, carefully picked up the hawk and transported it to the New England Wildlife Center's Weymouth location to be assessed by the veterinary team.

The hawk was given medication for pain and inflammation. After some rest, the hawk was given a flight test and released back into the forest.

This isn't the only rescue that Officer Kaes has been involved in. Last year, a hawk flew into Fratelli's Bakery and hit a wall inside the building. The officer carefully removed the hawk and while making an assessment as to what injuries it had, the hawk was able to fly off. Then, last week, an owl was in the middle of Victory Road and almost struck by a motorist, who contacted the police.

The first officer to respond radioed Communications and said, "We're going to need Tim Kaes here." The Officer bundled up the owl and transported it to the New England Wildlife Center. Nice Work!

Real Estate Activity Off To Slow Start, O'Donnell Reports

Sales, Mortgage Lending Down In January In Norfolk County

Register of Deeds William P. O'Donnell reports an across-the-board decline in real estate activity for Norfolk County in January 2019. Declines were seen in both real estate sales and in mortgage lending.

"During the month of January, a total of 1,141 residential and commercial real estate sales were recorded countywide, resulting in a 7 percent drop from the previous January numbers. Additionally, the total dollar volume of these residential and commercial sales decreased by 42 percent to $433.7 million year over year, as well as declined in the average sale price by 39% to $662,165.

The reductions in total sales numbers and average sales price were skewed by two Quincy commercial sales, one for $80 million and the other for $43 million that took place in January 2018," O'Donnell noted.

Lending activity continued to experience declines in January. A total of 1,463 mortgages were filed in January, a 21 percent reduction from the previous year, along with a 54 percent decline to $653.9 million for total mortgage recordings.

"Norfolk County homeowners continue to be very cautious when contemplating whether or not to borrow money," O'Donnell said. "Factors include decreased mortgage activity caused by lack of available real estate inventory, concern about the direction of mortgage rates and the uncertainty about the state of affairs in Washington D.C."

One notable bright spot was the sizeable reduction in Norfolk County foreclosure activity. Foreclosure deed recordings fell 33 percent for January. The news was even better for Notice to Foreclose Mortgages filings, the first step in the foreclosure process, which declined by a whopping 43 percent.

"The foreclosure stats were very encouraging for January," O'Donnell said. "Of course, this is small consolation to those homeowners who are having difficulty paying their mortgage due to economic hardship."

The Norfolk County Registry of Deeds continues to partner with Quincy Community Action Programs, 617-479-8181 x376, and NeighborWorks Southern Mass, 508-587-0950. They are available to help anyone who has received a Notice to Foreclose Mortgage from a lender. A third option is to contact the Massachusetts Attorney General's Consumer Advocacy and Response Division (CARD) at 617-727-8400.

Each of these programs is staffed by knowledgeable professionals. Anyone who has received a foreclosure notice should consider availing themselves of these excellent programs.

On the consumer protection front, the number of Homestead recordings fell 4 percent in January from 757 compared to 791 year over year.

"A Homestead," said O'Donnell, "provides limited protection against the forced sale of an individual's primary residence to satisfy unsecured debt up to $500,000. I urge homeowners who have not recorded a Homestead to consider this valuable consumer protection tool."

In conclusion, O'Donnell said:

"Without question January was a disappointing month for real estate activity in Norfolk County. Traditionally, winter months like January do not exhibit great real estate numbers. However, lack of available inventory continues to be a serious issue. This shortage of housing stock is especially impacting first-time home buyers. While the Federal Reserve has indicated a willingness to reduce the number of interest rate increases, consumers are still being cautious when it comes to borrowing money.

Evening Red Line Service Resumes

By SCOTT JACKSON

Evening service on the Braintree Branch of the MBTA's Red Line will resume this week with trains traveling in a single-track configuration for the next several weeks.

Trains will share one track between North Quincy and Quincy Center as needed during off-peak hours, but customers will no longer have to transfer to a shuttle bus to continue their trip. Because trains in both directions will be sharing a single track between North Quincy and Quincy Center and must pass slowly through the construction area at Wollaston station, there may still be some delays while trains wait for the track to be clear. T officials said they would make every effort to keep disruptions to a minimum, and would use emails, T-Alerts and the T's website, mbta.com, to alert riders if shuttle service were to be used.

The shuttle bus that runs between Quincy Center, Wollaston and North Quincy will continue to run for the duration of the project.

Additionally, parking at Wollaston will be $2 per day until the new station opens this summer. The lot has about 400 spaces.

The Wollaston MBTA station is expected to reopen in August.

This week also marks the start of a mixed-use development with 610 apartments and 45,000 square feet of retail space at the North Quincy MBTA station, which will be built in two phases over the next three years. The first phase will include a parking garage with 852 spaces set aside for Red Line riders — equal to the number of spaces open on the Hancock Street side of the station — plus 700 more spaces for residential and retail use. T officials expect the garage to open in 18 months.

Hopefully, we will see improvements in the real estate climate going forward."

Some 600 spaces on the Hancock Street side of the station were closed this week as work began. More than 600 other spaces will remain open between the Hancock Street side of the station and the lot on Newport Avenue, according to T officials.

The North Quincy station will remain open throughout the project.

Family Seeks Answers In Former Quincy Man's Death

some closure and find some justice because nothing is going to bring him back. There's no closure but there is a healing process and I think that would be part of it.

"I really pray for his family that they can find that so he can rest in peace because it's an absolute tragedy. It's hard to comprehend that a guy like him . . . I don't ever remember him getting involved in an altercation. I don't remember him saying a bad word about anyone or anyone saying a bad word about him. I knew him for 30 years. He would be the type to try to calm a situation down and defuse a situation and I truly believe that's what happened to him.

"It's tragic but it wasn't an accident; something happened and I hope they can find the justice that they deserve."

Mayor Thomas Koch and several local clergy spoke at the vigil. They remembered Chris as a great father and husband and a peacemaker as well as all the good that he did during his life.

"We gather at this vigil to honor Chris for being the great father and husband and peacemaker that he was," said Pastor Doug Gray from the First Church of Squantum. "We are here to remember the good he has done.

"We are also here to recognize the awful dark thing that has happened in the community and determine together that they will seek healing and hope," Pastor Gray said.

Koch again offered his deepest sympathies and condolences to the McCallum family whom he has known for many years.

"They are one of those great families that make this city what it is. Chris was so proud of his years at NQHS and what an impact he made on his peers and everyone he came in contact with," the mayor said.

"What happened is not what Quincy is about at all," Koch continued. "I know we are all feeling the grief with the loss of Chris, we cannot compare that feeling with what his wife and children, his parents and siblings, are going through. Let us keep them in our thoughts and prayers in the coming days.

"As mayor, I would encourage anyone out there that may know something about the case to please call either the Quincy or State Police and share what information you may have.

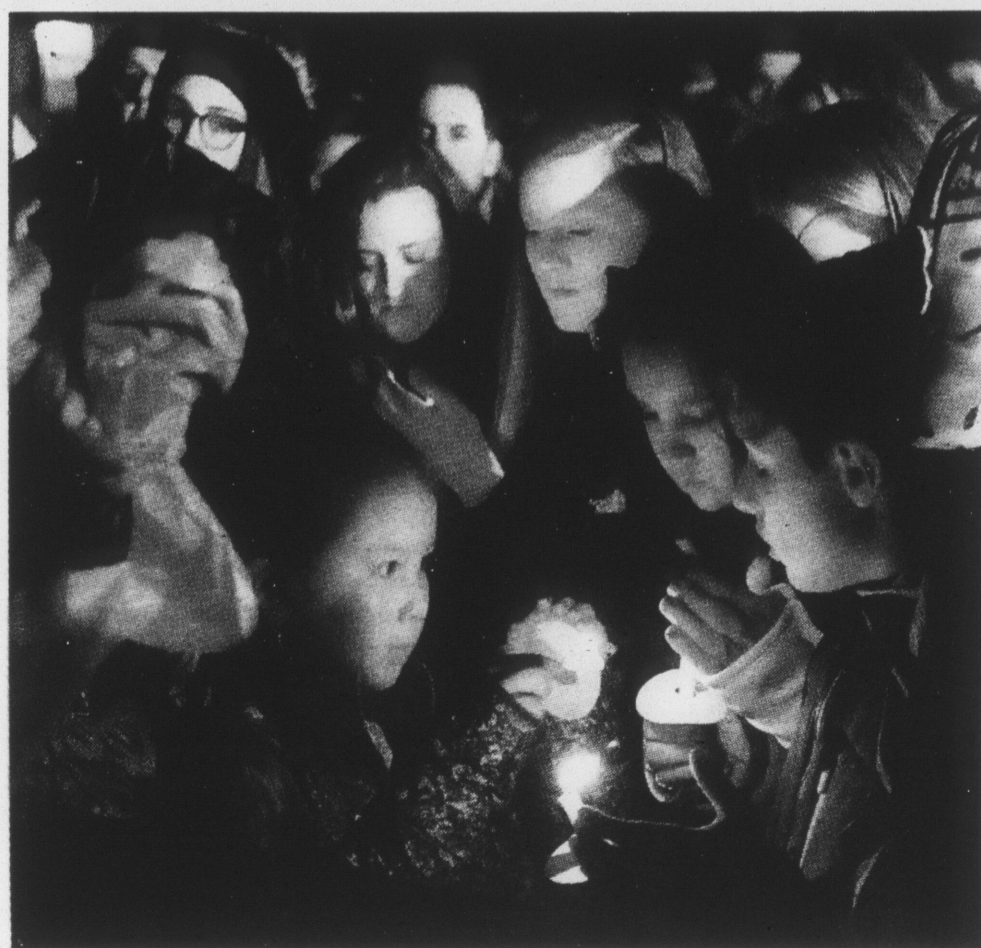

"But I'd ask you more importantly to pray for healing in our community, pray for the McCallum family and I know I speak for all of you when I say we are here for them in any way for anytime we've had a crisis or challenges in our community in our city people come together time and time again.

"It doesn't matter what your faith is, it doesn't matter what your ethnicity is, we are all part of the same human family. Each of us created by the God that loves us.

Michael Fehan, pastor of the Evangelical Church of the Atlantic, asked those attending the vigil to come together so that light can overcome darkness, so that justice can prevail.

"The world can be a dark place and we're living in the midst of it right now. There is one thing greater than the darkness and it's light. In fact, light overcomes darkness. In fact, we can't appreciate light unless it's in the midst of darkness and how badly do we need light tonight," Pastor Fehan said.

"We need to be careful in these dark days not to be overcome by darkness. Not to be overcome by negativity. Not to overcome by the

THE VIGIL in remembrance of Christopher McCallum was attended by more than 500 people including these youngsters who huddle together to light candles in memory of the 44-year-old former Squantum man, husband and father of three boys who died last month after injuries sustained in an altercation outside in the Nickerson American Legion Post. QHA Community Room Dedicated In Memory Of Rosemary Wahlberg

Rosemary Wahlberg, a longtime community activist, was posthumously honored by the Quincy Housing Authority's Board of Commissioners during a recent meeting.

Mrs. Wahlberg had served as the executive director of the Quincy Community Action Programs for 25 years and remained active on its board of directors following her retirement in 1999. She had also served on the board of commissioners for the Quincy Housing Authority, the board of directors for South Shore Day Care, the board of governors for Quincy College, and as a trustee for Manet Community Health Center and the former Quincy City Hospital.

Mrs. Wahlberg died in July 2018 at the age of 87.

Arthur "Archie" Wahlberg, her husband of 66 years, was appointed to QHA's Board of Commissioners following her death.

He was on hand for the recent board meeting at which Mrs. Wahlberg was honored. The meeting was held in the community room at Tobin Towers and was intended to be an update of the progress QHA has made over the last two years and provide guidance for the future.

After an hour-and-a-half update on the many improvements the authority has gone through there was a guest speaker, Mayor Thomas Koch. The mayor surprised Archie and, together with the Quincy Housing Authority, the community room was dedicated to Mrs. Wahlberg.

"Rosemary was an icon here at the Quincy Housing Authority and this is a great tribute to her years of dedication and efforts," said James Marathas, the executive director of the Quincy Housing Authority. "I was honored to work with Rosemary and touched by the relationship of her and her husband Archie. They are very special people."

Koch presented Archie with an award of lifetime achievement in Mrs. Wahlberg's memory. After the dedication service, Archie was surprisingly greeted by his children and family.

"Rosemary will be forever remembered at the Quincy Housing Authority," Marathas said.

"We'll be looking to increase our budget next year for funding those two positions and balance them against other needs the system might have before presenting our budget to the committee," he said.

Another grant expiring is the state Mass. Skills Grant that covered new technology equipment.

Mullaney added that factoring the loss of grants is difficult since the school budget is in effect after the grant funding comes out.

Lebo praised the district's curriculum directors that write and apply for grants to help reduce the district's budget.

"Grants require a lot of writing and communicating and reporting back to the state," she said.

Mullaney added that grant writing is "a lot of work. They require more and more data."

DENTISTRY for the 21st Century

by Steven A. Brustin, D.M.D.

EARLY CANCER DETECTION

An important benefit of regular dental checkups is the potential to save lives by detecting oral cancer early. Each year in the United States about 49,700 new cases of oral cancer are diagnosed, accounting for around 3% of all cancer diagnoses. If cancer has not spread to surrounding tissues, the 5-year survival rates for oral cancer of the lips, tongue, and floor of the mouth range from 75%-93%. These percentages decline if the cancer has spread. Early signs of oral cancer include a white/red patch in the mouth, a sore or ulcer that does not heal or bleeds, tenderness/pain/lumps anywhere in the mouth or on the lips, and other symptoms that the hygienist and dentist are trained to detect. As part of your healthcare team, we are concerned about all aspects of your health. If a medical condition comes to our attention during a dental exam, you can be sure we will discuss the issues with you as well as any other healthcare provider if you choose. We bring you our dental column as a way to inform our friends and neighbors here in Quincy of the many benefits of professional dentistry. For gentle dental care for the family, please call us at 617 479-6220. We're located at 44 Greenleaf Street.

P.S. Factors that increase the risk of developing oral cancer include age (the average diagnosis is at 62 years old); tobacco and alcohol use; sun exposure that burns the lips; and gender (men are more than twice as likely to develop oral cancer as women).

Smith, Sleiman Help North Quincy Girls Stun Hull

By PAUL BREGOLI

The saying "It ain't over till it's over," played out on Senior Night at Walter "Cap" Bryan Gym on Saturday night. Trailing by nine points with 2:10 left in the game, the Red Raiders girls' basketball team scratched and clawed their way to a stunning 47-46 win over Hull Pirates.

Junior Alexa Radzik started the comeback with a three-pointer from the wing. The home team cut the lead to four after Mary Kate McAleavey picked off a pass and found junior Olivia Murray for a layup with 52 seconds left. Lindsey Keenan made two huge free throws prior to the steal.

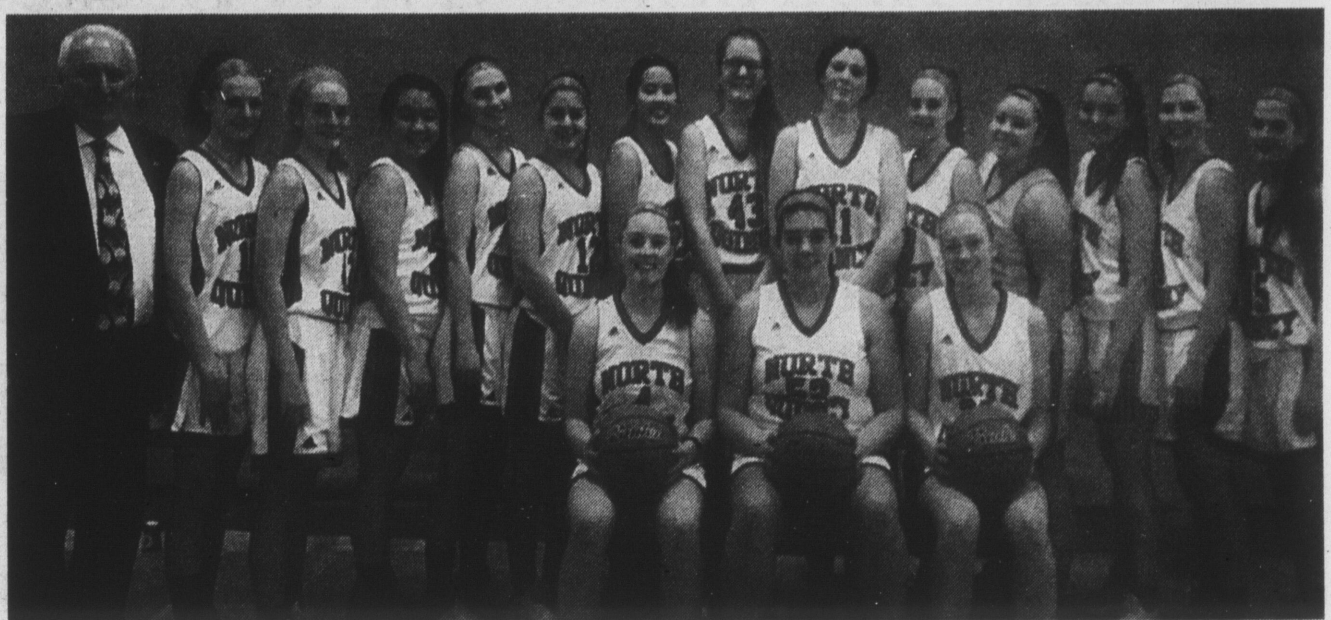

On the following play, McAleavey, who had eight rebounds, picked up her fifth foul. After getting a big defensive stop, North's Samantha Smith made a diving save on a ball headed out of bounds, with Murray diving to the floor to retrieve the ball. Murray got the ball to Kiera Sleiman who found Smith. Smith drove the lane, made the layup and got fouled. Smith—who finished the game with 10 points, five steals and four assists—calmly sank the free throw with 11.1 seconds left to cut the deficit to one.

After an NQ timeout, Hull inbounded the ball. Smith intercepted the pass and attempted to drive through the Pirates defense. Double teamed, Smith found Sleiman at the top of the key. The freshman point guard drove past three Hull defenders and converted the layup with 1.8 seconds showing on the clock. Sleiman then stole the ensuing inbounds pass to seal the win and the miraculous Red Raiders comeback.

"This is the most amazing comeback win I've ever witnessed as a coach," North Quincy coach Paul Bregoli said. "The kids just refused to lose! Big plays were made during that stretch that allowed us to win."

"Although we have not been as successful as we would have liked, this team continued to grow and get better. They never quit in any game they played, a testimony to the character of this group of players. I'm happy for them, especially our three seniors."

In the first half, North was in control, taking a 22-13 lead into the half. Amanda Hellmuth got North going early, hitting two driving layups while Smith had five, McAleavey four, Ashley Caldwell a baseline jumper and Maria Zraizaa with two.

North had difficulty with the Pirates' press in the second half, falling behind by as many as 11 points until the heart-stopping comeback.

Earlier in the week, Scituate came away with a 63-47 win at North. Playing without the team's leading scorer and rebounder, McAleavey, who was hospitalized with appendicitis, the Red Raiders battled the Sailors throughout the contest.

Smith had a career-high 20 points along with a career-high four three-pointers with four steals and seven rebounds. Sleiman, who had seven steals in the win over Hull, had seven points against Scituate. Junior Sydney Taylor added five points, including a three-pointer, while freshman Jamie McAleavey came into the fourth quarter scoring six points on three for three shooting.

North then took on first place Pembroke, losing to the Titans 55-25. Hellmuth paced the visitors with five points. North had four three-pointers in the game, with Smith, Radzik, Caldwell and Taylor having the baskets.

Mary Kate McAleavey finished her career as the 25th all-time leading scorer despite being sick for her final three games. North loses three seniors—McAleavey, Smith and Zraizaa.

With so many young players, the future looks bright for the Red Raiders.

Quincy Boys Hoop Downs Milton To Improve To 14-7

By TOM JOYCE

It was not the team who started the game off dominant who came out on top, it was the one who finished strong.

Although the Quincy High boys basketball team had a sizable home win on Monday night, they were not dominant from the start. It took overcoming an early eight-point deficit and additional pressure in the fourth quarter, but the Presidents ousted the Milton Wildcats 61-41 in the first round of the Vin Moscardelli Memorial Tournament.

With the win, Quincy improved to 14-7 on the season. The Presidents advanced to play Malden Catholic in the tourney title game Tuesday. MC defeated Weymouth 53-32 in the first round.

"It's all about their heart," Presidents head coach David Parry said after Quincy's win.

"I was very worried about Milton's athleticism. I scouted them a couple times and they have a lot of speed and quickness. I wasn't sure we were going to be able to keep up with them, so that's why we started off in zone. Then we switched it up to our bread and butter, man-to-man. I told the kids, 'I will never doubt them.' They can play with anybody. I probably over-coached or overthought it, but that's what we're paid to do."

"I'm very happy for the guys. They still have a dream of a home playoff game. We have to win one more to have a hope of that."

Milton was the dominant team at the start of the contest because while the Presidents got shot opportunities and some unfortunate bounces against them, they trailed in the contest 10-3 with 4:44 remaining in the first quarter; their only score in this span came on a three-pointer.

With 2:52 remaining in the first quarter, Brandon Johnson broke up Milton's scoring run. He sank a pair of free throws making it a 12-5 contest. However, Milton led 17-9 after one quarter.

Even so, momentum changed greatly in the second quarter.

Although Milton got the initial basket of the quarter, the Presidents responded with a 6-0 run which included a Johnson layup off a Will Zarges pass following a Milton turnover. This made it a 19-13 game with 6:03 remaining in the first half.

Milton countered with a pair of free throws, but the Presidents' offense exploded shortly thereafter. They took the lead on a 15-0 run.

Zarges made it a one score game 21-18 with 3:01 left in the first half on a three pointer. Thirty seconds later, Nick Cedrone drove through the paint and hit a layup to make it a one point contest. And with 2:04 remaining, the team took a 22-21 lead on a Johnson layup following a steal by Dyllan Lopes.

Zarges then hit a trey and Lopes added three more points on a basket and a free throw.

Milton hit a three as time expired in the first half, but the Presidents took a 28-24 lead into the third quarter.

Both sides played tough defense in the third quarter and with four minutes remaining in it, the Presidents maintained a 34-30 lead.

In the final minute of the quarter, they pulled away with a Zarges three-pointer and a bucket from Brendan Keaveny off an offensive rebound as time expired. The team went into the fourth quarter with a 41-32 lead.

Milton played strong basketball early in the fourth quarter, going on an 8-2 run to pull within three points, 43-40, but that was as close as they would come.

With 5:18 remaining, Cedrone hit a layup, got fouled and made his free throw, extending the team's lead to six. Milton countered with a free throw and on their next offensive possession, they had a shot to get back into the game. However, Keaveny did not let it happen.

Instead, the big man got a steal, fast break and threw down a monstrous two-handed dunk which electrified the team and crowd alike.

It put the team up 48-41 with 3:56 left in the game. The dunk sparked a 15-0 run for the Presidents.

"I think at that point, it just really went our way," Parry said.

"That gets your adrenaline going. It got the crowd going for us. They were great behind us. It was fun stuff."

Lopes hit a three off a Milton turnover 19 seconds later, extending the Presidents' lead to 10 points.

Johnson then made back-to-back layups, Keaveny hit a three and Johnson made a layup and a free throw with under a minute left, making it a 61-41 game.

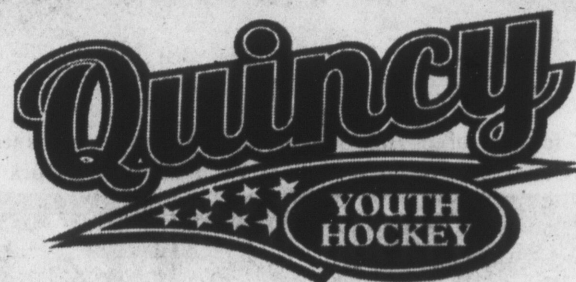

Zarges scored a team-high 22 points in the victory while Johnson finished second on the team, adding 16 more.

Parry also said he was impressed with the way Lopes played defensively. He covered Milton junior Earl Tucker, who Parry called one of the top players in the state.

"He's really picked up his game, and we need it," Parry said of Lopes.

"He's helping the team immensely, so we're very happy with him."

Quincy Girls Qualify For Tournament

The Quincy girls varsity basketball team reeled off its fifth straight victory Saturday with a 46-44 home win over Milton on Senior Night.

The victory improved the Presidents' record to 9-6 in the Patriot League, 13-8 overall.

Against Milton, Quincy honored its seniors as they started the game allowing only four points in the first four minutes. Seniors were Gia Calabro, Julianne Gazdola, Rachel Smith and Ciana Williams.

The Presidents had early foul trouble but managed a five-point lead at the half 22 to 17. They extended the lead to 33 to 26 at the end of three. Milton made a strong comeback in the fourth behind the aggressive attacking offense of Olivia DiManno who had seven points in the period. Clutch 3-pointers by junior forwards Juliana Tracy (8 points total) and Brenna Tobin (7 points) helped to give the Presidents the win.

Junior forward Allison McMorrow scored 8 points and sophomore guard Priscilla Bonica chipped in seven points.

The Quincy Presidents also posted victories of Pembroke and Plymouth South last week. Quincy's 54-47 win over Pembroke qualified the Presidents for the Div. 1 state tournament.

In that victory, Jill O'Toole's 8 points in the period led Quincy to a 10-9 lead out of the gate. They extended this as far as 20-9 in the second period behind the red-hot shooting of Priscilla Bonica and Juliana Tracey. The Presidents connected on 5 threes in the period.

Pembroke battled back to cut the lead to 5 at the half, 29-24. The third quarter was a battle and Quincy headed into the 4th with a narrow 40-38 advantage. They were able to force several turnovers and convert to build the lead up to as much as 8, but Pembroke wouldn't quit, cutting the lead to 4 with possession in the last minute. A clutch steal by Jillian O'Toole sealed the win. Quincy's 15/19 from the free-throw line was the x-factor in the win.

Quincy defeated Plymouth South, 47-38, as sophomore guard Priscilla Bonica scored a team-high 12 points, including three three-pointers.

Plymouth South gave Quincy a battle on the road; the teams were tied at 25 at the half despite a strong effort from Juliana Tracy who had nine points in the first half. Teja Andrews led the charge for the Panthers scoring 15 points in the first half.

The strong bench play of the Presidents was the deciding factor in the fourth quarter. Senior Rachel Smith came in and had an immediate impact on the game as did the hot shooting of sophomore Priscilla Bonica who scored 12 in the contest. Also playing well was sophomore point guard Fallon Hobin.

Jillian O'Toole contributed strong defense and 10 points in the effort.

QC Granite Men's Basketball Seeks Playoff Spot

As Quincy College Granite Men's Basketball headed into its last two weeks of the regular season, head coach Doug Scott knew his team would need a couple of victories and help from other teams in Region 21 competition for the Granite to secure their spot in the National Junior College Athletic Association (NJCAA) playoffs. Currently ranked 7th in the NJCAA Region 21 standings, the top six teams in the region head to the playoffs which start in March.

On Feb. 14, Quincy College Granite (12-15) faced local rival and sixth ranked in the region, Massasoit Community College (13-12) for a must win contest. The closely contested game went to overtime; Massasoit came out on top 90-84.

Quincy College Granite offense was led by Fred Smith's 26 points, 17 rebounds, and 3 blocks. Also playing well for Quincy was Traye Qualls with 20 points and 7 assists and Cam Mason with 16 points offensively.

Coach Scott, although disappointed with the outcome, praised his team's effort especially Fred Smith, Deon Bell, and Remy Chebbo for their defensive efforts against an impressive Massasoit offense.

After this tough loss, Quincy College Granite squared off versus Bunker Hill Community College (23-3) who are ranked third in the NJCAA Region 21 Men's Basketball on Feb 16. Quincy played what Coach Scott said was "one of its better games of the year against the perennial conference favorites" but foul trouble caused Quincy College Granite to lose 90-71.

Quincy was led by Region 21 leading scorer Darrius Hyppolite with 23 points and great offensive efforts by Cam Mason, Deon Bell, and Captain Jon DaVeiga, but late foul trouble hurt the Granite in their bid for a late season upset of Bunker Hill Community College. Quincy College Granite's Fred Smith continued his defensive dominance with 11 rebounds and 7 blocks along with 9 points in a losing effort.

On the road for their last two games, Quincy College Granite is relying upon outcome of other games in the region to determine the final playoff standing. Granite will face NJCAA Region 21 Leading Community College of Rhode Island (25-3) on Saturday and (9-14) Roxbury Community College on Monday, Feb. 25th to conclude the regular season.

To advance to the NJCAA Region 21 playoffs, Quincy College Granite needs help from other Region 21 teams to secure a place in the Region 21 playoffs that will be held at Massasoit Community College on March 2-4th.

Quincy College Granite home games are free and open to the public. View the full schedule of Quincy College Granite games including regional standings, player statistics, and more at quincycollege.edu/granite.

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Your efforts in behalf of a colleague do not go unnoticed, let alone unappreciated. Meanwhile, arrange to spend more time investigating that troubling fact you recently uncovered.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Devoting a lot of time to a current career move means having less time for those in your private life. But once you explain the circumstances, they should understand and be supportive.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Organizing your many duties in order of importance should help you get through them pretty quickly. Additional information puts that still-to-be-made decision in a new light.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Lingering bad feelings over a recent misunderstanding should fade as reconciliation efforts continue. Meanwhile, vacation plans might need to be revised because of new developments.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Love dominates the Lion's heart this week, with Cupid shooting arrows at single Leos and Leonas looking for romance. Partnered pairs also enjoy strengthened relationships.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) "Getting to Know You" should be the single Virgo's theme song as you and that special person discover more about one another. That workplace situation needs looking into.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) You might be upset at having your objectivity questioned in the handling of a dispute. But it would be wise to re-examine your feelings to make sure you're being fair with both sides.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) A family dispute creates mixed feelings about how you hope it will be ultimately resolved. Best advice: Stay out of it and let the involved parties work it through by themselves.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Making an effort to smooth over even the smallest obstacles now will go a long way to assuring that things run smoothly once you're set to move on with your plans.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) A challenge to your authority can be upsetting, but your long-time supporters want you to defend your position so you can win over even your most adamant detractors.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Being unable to get involved in a friend's problem calls for an honest approach. Provide explanations, not excuses. Another friend might be able to offer support for your decision.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) You find yourself swimming in circles, looking for some way to get back on a straight course. But things get easier once you're able to refocus your energies.

BORN THIS WEEK: You're known for your charm and your wisdom, and there's no one who wouldn't want you to be part of his or her life.

by Tony Rizzo

HOLLYWOOD — Angelina Jolie is not afraid of “Those Who Wish Me Dead,” because she’s just signed for the chase thriller, which takes place during a wildfire in Montana. She’s currently shooting the fantasy drama “Come Away,” based on the classic novels “Alice in Wonderland” and “Peter Pan.” Neither she nor co-star David Oyelowo play Alice or Peter Pan. The story is about siblings trying to help their parents overcome the death of their eldest son. Angelina has completed “Maleficent 2” (the original “Maleficent” took in $758 million), but the sequel won’t be released until May 2020 because of the special effects needed to complete the film.

“Saturday Night Live’s” Pete Davidson may have ended his relationship with singer Ariana Grande, but the spotlight it put on him supercharged his film career. He’s second billed after Jon Cryer in the comedy “Big Time Adolescence,” which screened last month at Sundance, and he appears in “What Men Want,” with Taraji P. Henson (which opened Feb. 8). Now Judd Apatow has announced he’s building a comedy around Pete, due in June 2020. The last film Apatow built was a “Trainwreck” for Amy Schumer, grossing $140 million.

Ryan Reynolds is following his $770 million superhero hit “Deadpool 2” with the comedy “Shotgun Wedding,” about a destination wedding that gets hijacked by criminals, and with the Netflix action film “Six Underground,” with Ben Hardy and Dave Franco, out later this year. Jake Gyllenhaal is hoping his just released “Velvet Buzzsaw,” with Rene Russo and Toni Collette, does better than his last film, “The Sisters Brothers” ($38 million cost/only a $10.3 million gross). But a sure thing will be “Spider-Man: Far From Home,” with Tom Holland, Samuel L. Jackson, Zendaya and Cobie Smulders (out July 5). “Spider-Man: Homecoming” grossed $880 million in 2017.

Fans of “Saved by the Bell” are more than responsible for making the 30-year-old show’s teen hangout, “Saved by the Max,” a huge hit. The malt shop opened in Hollywood last June and was supposed to close in six months and move to another city, but instead, plans now are afoot to transform a section of the diner into the Malibu Beach Club (run by Leah Remini’s character on the show) for fans’ additional enjoyment. It will feature a variety of inspired cocktails and several new food items by the diner’s executive chef, Brian Fisher. There is a catch though ... getting a reservation for dinner is nearly impossible because of the long wait list of dedicated “Saved by the Bell” fanatics. It’s rumored that some of the show’s stars — Mark-Paul Gosselaar, Mario Lopez, Tiffani Thiessen, Elizabeth Berkley and Leah Remini — have been known to drop in unannounced ... those preppies never had any reservations!

KOVELS' Antiques & Collecting

By Terry and Kim Kovel

Namesake Furniture

Famous politicians, generous donors, entertainment and sports stars, and military heroes are honored by having their names on statues, buildings, bridges, streets, parks and even rooms. But famous furniture designers and architects are more often given lasting fame when a chair, desk or style is given their name. Some names used today are hundreds of years old.

There is the American Hitchcock chair, a painted wooden chair with a curved top, carved back slats and legs that are continuations of the back's uprights. It was named for Lambert Hitchcock (1795-1852). Even older is Chippendale furniture, named for Thomas Chippendale (1718-1779), an English cabinetmaker who published a book that pictured his designs. Some collectors of early photographs buy daguerreotypes without knowing they are named for Louis Daguerre (1787-1851), who, in about 1839, invented the first photographic pictures.

A 20th-century reproduction of a Carlton House desk sold recently at a Cowan auction for $660. The original desk looked like a table with a horse-shoe-shaped top section made to fit on top of the table. It was ordered by the Prince of Wales in about 1783 and designed by George Hepplewhite. The desk, named for a favored palace, was a gift for a member of the Prince's entourage living at Carlton House, a London palace that was demolished in 1825 after the Prince became King George IV. The building was replaced with Carlton House terrace. An early 19th-century Carlton House desk sells today for $6,000 to $10,000.

True or false?

Strange BUT TRUE

* It was French-German physician, philosopher and humanitarian Albert Schweitzer who made the following sage observation: “In everyone’s life, at some time, our inner fire goes out. It is then burst into flame by an encounter with another human being. We should all be thankful for those people who rekindle the inner spirit.”

* You might be surprised to learn that famed lover and heartbreaker Casanova eventually became a librarian.

* If you’ve ever yelled out a warning in panic — “Stop!,” “Run!,” “Don’t!” — you’ve used a monepic sentence; that is, one that is complete with just a single word. Of course, at the time you probably weren’t concerned about the grammatical nature of your utterance.

* If you’re like the hypothetical average person, your mouth will create 10,000 gallons of saliva over the course of your lifetime.

* It’s been reported that the country’s first pizza parlor was in New York City — naturally. It opened in 1885, but barely got by. In 1895, it was sold for a mere $200 — small change even in those times.

* The bearded vulture is the only known animal whose diet is made up almost exclusively of bone.

* It’s a well-worn trope that men refuse to stop and ask for directions when they’re lost. That point of view might seem to be supported by the results of a survey conducted by the American Automobile Association, which found that just 34 percent of male drivers admit to stopping to ask for directions. However, the same survey found that only 37 percent of women did the same.

Now here's a tip!

by Jo Ann Derson

* Corral kids’ books in a traveling library by repurposing an old wagon. All you need to do is store the books spine side up for easy selection. This also makes it a snap to move it to just the right place to encourage reading, whether it’s the garden path or a blanket fort. If you don’t have a wagon to repurpose, installing some castor wheels on the bottom of a crate works, too.

* Replace mascara frequently. But if you need to freshen a tube of dry mascara, just add a few drops of contact solution to the brush and bottle.

* “Use mismatched socks as wiper blade covers when you are expecting inclement weather. It will keep your wipers from freezing to your windshield, and if they get all yucky, you can just pitch them.” — N.G. in Ohio

* Make doctor’s appointments on or near a major holiday every year. That way you don’t end up forgetting when your last annual exam or dental cleaning was.

* If you seriously need to remove a color polish from your nails, but ran out of remover, try this trick: Paint the nail generously with clear polish, then use a dry cotton ball to swipe it off. Repeat as needed.

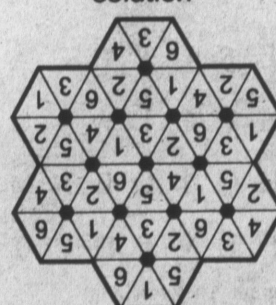

* “This tip is for gardeners who live in areas that don’t often freeze. I’m safe most of the year, but when temperatures do dip, I cover my vulnerable plants. In addition to the freeze cloth, I also add a string of twinkle lights, which can add a surprisingly margin of heat. And they look pretty as well.” — M.M. in Georgia

Fr. Eric Hillegas Farewell Service Sunday At Saint Chrysostom's

The Parish of St. Chrysostom recently announced that Father Eric Hillegas, the Rector of eight years of the Wollaston parish, has accepted a new call to ministry as the Rector of St. John's Church in York, Pennsylvania.

Fr. Eric has been a significant presence in the Quincy community since his arrival in 2010. During his time at St. C's, he was involved in nourishing the spiritual life of the church with a flourishing music program, community outreach with the Interchurch Council, the Mayor's Prayer breakfast, and maintaining an active partnership with the Uplift After School program.

Fr. Eric will be incredibly missed for his service to those in recovery with his institution of a chaplaincy program at Phoenix House, now Gavin Foundation. He also initiated a 12-step communion service, various bible studies and created a home for many groups to use the facilities for fellowship in recovery.

Fr. Eric and his wife, Kendyll, will be departing in late February for Pennsylvania with their two-year-old daughter, Penelope. The Parish of St. Chrysostom will celebrate their service and offer a spiritual send off with a communion service Sunday, Feb. 24 at 10 a.m. A Fellowship luncheon will also be celebrated on Sunday at 11:30 a.m.

The community is welcome to both communion and lunch to offer well wishes and thanks for the Hillegas' family contribution to the community.

Third Anniversary~ 2/25/2016 - 2/25/2019

*May you always find your arm slot,
May all your swings be pure,
Through every bruise and bad hop,
I hope that you endure,
May your change-up find the strike zone,
May your blooper find a hole,
Let all your dreams hit down the line,
Stay just inside the pole,
May the wind blow out when you are at bat,
This is my wish for you,
And if you are ever in a jam,
I hope that you turn two.*

QC Designated A Military Friendly School

Quincy College, with over 175 veterans enrolled, has been designated a Military Friendly School for 2019-2020. This marks the eighth consecutive year that Quincy College has been ranked a Military Friendly School by Victory Media, the leader in successfully connecting the military and civilian worlds.

The Military Friendly Schools designation is awarded to the top 15 percent of colleges, universities and trade schools in the country that are doing the most to embrace military students, and to dedicate resources to ensure their success in the classroom and after graduation.

"The Military and Veteran's Services Office is honored to support our veterans and we are honored to be recognized by Victory Media for a ninth year in a row. We continually evaluate our programs and assess the needs of our students, providing one-on-one support. We look forward to continuing to serve the Quincy College community of veterans year round with honor and commitment they deserve," stated Karen Connick, Military and Veteran's Services Specialist for Quincy College Military and Veteran's Services Department in Quincy and Plymouth.

Connick, a retired Colonel in the United States Army Reserve who served at Naval Station Newport in Rhode Island is uniquely positioned to address veteran students who have recently returned to civilian life or who are veterans who are in the community.

Quincy College offers veteran support on both the Quincy and Plymouth campuses.

The Military and Veteran Services Office at Quincy College was established in 2011 to support the unique needs of the veteran population looking to return to college. Quincy College remains committed to continually improving the education experience provided to those students who have sacrificed in service to their country.

Mark Herrington, Army Veteran and Lakeville resident received a recommendation to attend Quincy College from the VA. During the Summer of 2018, Mark chose to attend Quincy College for it's ease of access to the MBTA. What he found at Quincy College Military and Veteran Services Department was a support system for veteran students of all ages.

"Navigating the process of VA Benefits on top of pursuing an education can be complex and frustrating. The Quincy College Veterans and Military Services Office, lead by Karen Connick, a retired Colonel, makes the process seamless. She is the go-to for a wealth of information; no question is too large or too small. She is my liaison to the VA. Karen can get answers when I can't. The Veteran and Military Services Office keeps a pulse on what is happening on campus, translates this experience, and allows me (and others) to focus on our education. Karen exhibits all the best traits found in an officer: disciplined, problem solver, taking the initiative, and making things happen," Herrington stated.

Speaking toward the Veteran community found at Quincy College, Herrington elaborated: "This office (Military and Veteran Services) is the veteran community on campus. If you need to take a break from the day-to-day, want to mingle with other veterans, this is the place. Simply, there are things that only veterans can understand and this office has a veteran point of view."

For more information about the college's commitment to supporting military students and their dependents, visit <http://www.quincycollege.edu/departments/military-veteran-affairs>.

over to the deeds of darkness that which brings brokenness and pain.

"Some of us are struggling and we are stuck in an ever-increasing darkness. How shall we help them? We should care for them, we need each other. In the midst of our pain we need one another. We are to love one another.

"We come here tonight to pray and to ask for justice that things will be made right," Pastor Fehan continued.

"We come here tonight to witness a life that was well-lived. Family and friends may your light shine before men, may it shine bright into the darkness. May your life be full of humility and kindness and may this life that we gather here tonight not be forgotten. For Chris lived life in a very unselfish and beautiful way. Let's commit ourselves to supporting the family and those who are struggling. Let's lift them up until one day soon they can stand and get back to some semblance of a life on their own."

He then asked for a moment of silence before offering a final prayer.

"Father in Heaven we come before you and ask you to have mercy on us and that you would bring your healing towards us and heal our broken hearts. That you lift up the McCallum family and bless them and meet their needs, give them hope and strengthen them. Lord would you help us, family and friends, to support them and in any and every way and Lord would you help us creatively to love them and support them and would you help us be a community once again and Lord would you help us not be overcome by the darkness that we may overcome the darkness with light. We pray this humbly in Christ's name. Amen."

MORE THAN 500 PEOPLE attended last Friday's candlelight vigil in memory of Christopher McCallum behind the Squantum Elementary School. Before candles were illuminated the Greater Boston Firefighters Pipe and Drum performed "Amazing Grace" on the bagpipes in remembrance of McCallum, a former Squantum resident who was fatally injured last month in an altercation outside the Nickerson American Legion Post.
